DOLLY DIMPLES.

Miss Dimples is 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 125 pounds. Remember that; it may help you to get the reward.

My first call was on South Second West street, where I met a very sweet lady. "Good morning," I greeted, so kindly that I startled myself. "I am giving away samples of a marvelous face cream, and I'd like to leave one with you. Do you use a cream?" I asked.

"Yes, I do, but I have never had this," she said, taking the sample I handed her and scanning the wrapper.

"It is called Sempre Giovine," I continued, "and is in a rose-colored jar. I apply it to the face and it dissolves and it will plump the face and give the texture of velvet."

Woman Gets Interested.

"When do you use it?" she asked. "Before and after exposure to the weather, and before retiring," I replied. "It will materially aid in removing tan, freckles or sunburn, and it faithfully will banish facial blemishes."

"The lady smiled at my enthusiasm. 'Really,' I said, 'it is wonderful. I use it constantly.' 'Do you use a face powder?' I inquired.

"No," she answered, "I don't." "Well, I will see that you receive a sample of our wonderful Egyptian Face Powder," I stated. "I want you to try it. It is a rice powder, no more harmful than talcum, and it stays on. I have no samples with me, but if you give me your name I'll send some of our powder and our soap."

"Mrs. M. Crompton, 558 South Second West," she dictated, and I wrote it down. "Thanking her, I departed. Next door was another charming lady. 'I am distributing free samples of the greatest face toilet in the world,' I told her. 'Won't you accept one?'

"Certainly," she replied, and I handed her a sample. "This cream has a world-wide reputation," I began. "It is extensively used in all parts of the globe. Every woman who has ever tried it always uses it, and you will, too. It is called Sempre Giovine."

"I don't take the time to bother much about creams, though I have them in my dressing case," she said. "I'll try it, though," she promised.

"Every woman should spend just a few minutes each day in caring for her complexion and her face," I said. "This will accomplish wonders if used daily. It clears the skin and its action is healing and nourishing. Use it before retiring and before and after being out of doors."

"I will try it," she said. "Dolly Expresses Regret." "I am sorry not to have samples of our Egyptian Face Powder with me," I said regretfully, "but if you give me your name I'll have one sent to you."

"Mrs. L. Herrick, 553 South Second West," she said kindly. "Thank you." One perfectly charming lady upon whom I called lived on South Thirtieth East street.

"Do you use a face cream?" I asked her when she came to the door. "Why, yes," she said. "I do."

Just then a cute little baby came and stood at the door with her. "Stand still, darling," she admonished when the little thing pushed against the screen door. "This is Sempre Giovine," I announced, handing her a sample package which contained a slip in my own handwriting reading: "Compliments of Dolly Dimples of The Herald-Republican."

"You use this on the face before retiring and after being out in the air," I be-

$500 REWARD.

For the capture of Dolly Dimples, the Herald-Republican will pay the following rewards: $500 in gold if the captor shows Miss Dolly Dimples a receipt for subscription to The Herald-Republican paid up to Oct. 15, 1910, and a copy of The Herald-Republican of the day's issue, and use the following words of identification: PARDON ME, YOU ARE THE MYSTERIOUS MISS DOLLY DIMPLES OF THE DAILY AND SUNDAY HERALD-REPUBLICAN.

$300 in gold if the captor shows Miss Dolly Dimples a paid-up subscription receipt to The Herald-Republican to Nov. 25, 1909, and a copy of The Herald-Republican of the day's issue, and use the following words of identification: PARDON ME, YOU ARE THE MYSTERIOUS MISS DOLLY DIMPLES OF THE DAILY AND SUNDAY HERALD-REPUBLICAN.

$200 in gold to any captor who shows Miss Dolly Dimples a copy of The Herald-Republican of the day's issue and uses the following words of identification: PARDON ME, YOU ARE THE MYSTERIOUS MISS DOLLY DIMPLES OF THE DAILY AND SUNDAY HERALD-REPUBLICAN.

The reward is effective at all hours of the day and night after 11 a. m. From the time the paper is issued, 5 a. m., until 11 a. m., Miss Dimples has her freedom, but at all other hours the contest is open.

If you have addressed Miss Dolly Dimples, using the exact words above given, and hold in your hand a paid-up receipt and copy of The Herald-Republican of the day's issue, she will at once admit her identity, take you to The Herald-Republican office and reward you above three rewards will be paid.

When you arrive at The Herald-Republican office you will be required to make an affidavit that you have been a resident of Utah for the past ninety days. The reward will not be paid to any outsider, but only to a bona fide resident of the state of Utah. This rule effectively prohibits any collusion and makes this contest of skill absolutely fair and above board.

Boys under 15 years of age are also prohibited from securing the reward, and will not be recognized in the contest. The same rule applies to any person directly or indirectly connected with The Herald-Republican, or any member of his or her family.

Here is a chance for some person to display cleverness and at the same time secure a free gift of one of the three rewards. Miss Dimples will positively not recognize anyone detaching her for any length of time in order to procure a Herald-Republican, or anyone in any way whatever who stops her longer than a reasonable period in order to repeat the salutation correctly. It must be distinctly understood that Miss Dolly Dimples will immediately admit her identity if correctly saluted.

There will be no need of holding her at any time, either between the hours that the contest is enforced or when it is not.

"I'll ask for you," I promised. "What is the name?" "Miss Fielding, and my number is 466," she replied.

In the dress department I purchased a small pin cushion, but the young lady forgot to enclose the check. At Walker's I looked at a line of beautiful jersey dresses. A very nice young lady waited on me and showed me a number of styles at different prices. She was very courteous and obliging indeed.

"I won't decide now," I said. "I am in a hurry. I'll bring my husband with me and come in this afternoon. If you'll give me your name I will ask for you."

"Ask for No. 15," said the young lady, smiling. "I smiled, too, and wondered why she withheld her name. It was late in the afternoon when I stopped at Cohn's. It must have been about 4:15. I bought a spool of thread at the notion counter from a nice girl, a brunette."

"What number?" she asked. "No. 40," I replied. I gave her even change. From Cohn's I went to the Paris Millinery company. There I bought a package of pins from a small girl in the notions department. A lady evidently as pleased as to my identity, followed me into the Paris, but she did not approach to greet me. She was tall and dressed in black, with a brown moire silk hat.

At Muller's Store. Salt Lake folks looked for me in earnest yesterday afternoon at the Muller clothing company's big store, and I was compelled to use all my ingenuity to evade capture. I am not sorry that you have all become so interested in me. I am a jolly fellow. I enjoy my work and the keener the contest becomes and the more I have to exercise my skill the better I like it.

I never encountered a more orderly crowd than that which assembled at Muller's. One does not expect to encounter courtesy in a crowd, yet, courtesy and consideration have been the rule with all of the crowds since I have been in Salt Lake. I do not understand how one of the evening papers can allude to ruffians. I have encountered none. I have never met more courteous, gentlemanly men. Their courtesy is all the more appreciated because it springs from their big, kind, manly hearts. It is the result of more exterior polish. Ladies were treated with a courtesy which was akin to reverence, and I was touched at seeing such kindness.

I did not succeed in effecting an escape until about 3:45 o'clock. Two very persistent gentlemen stationed themselves at the door and endeavored to repeat the salutation to every woman who entered. I watched for an opportunity and entered with a big jam. These two hard-working gentlemen tried to salute all the ladies who crowded in when I did, but it was impossible to speak to them all and I uttered a sigh of relief when I found myself safely inside. I was dressed in a self-colored dress.

Bought Overcoat for Boy. I walked right through to the boys' clothing department. There were some darlings and I bought one. I wanted to leave by the main entrance, for fear the two gentlemen at the door would apprehend me, so when the excitement in the front of the store was at its height, the charming Mr. Miner assisted me out the rear entrance.

In Muller's I particularly noticed two tall gentlemen who repeated the salutation to almost every woman in the store, but never once repeated it right. One was a brown hair and the other a blonde. The blonde lady entered. He was very courteous, removed his hat and said: "Pardon me, Miss, you are the mysterious Miss Dolly Dimples of the Herald-Republican." The blonde lady said: "No, I'm not."

The Colonial yesterday I was delighted to see that the big posters in front of the theatre announced the presentation of a play for a day. I have heard so much of this great musical comedy, that I am wild to see it. I adore Mabel. I would not for the world miss it. I am going to go to the Colonial and see the jolly musical show. I will occupy a seat somewhere in the theatre, so watch out for me.

Dolly Enjoys Life. Really, life looks rosy and desirable to the owner of an American Traveler. What a lovely ride I took in it yesterday, and what beautiful scenery I discovered about Salt Lake.

I motored out to Emigration canyon and drove several miles into its picturesque depths. The road at some places was dreadful, and I would not think of attempting to enter the canyon with any other machine but a trusty American.

When riding in an American car one feels safe and secure in the comforting knowledge that there is absolute immunity from danger of overturning or of broken springs. This machine has what is called an underspring frame; the springs

VICTIMS OF DISASTROUS WRECK

Scene of the wreck of the New York Central train at Elmendorf, in which ten were injured and one killed, as a result of a broken rail which flung the Atlantic Express from the track. Attached to the express was the special car carrying William K. Vanderbilt, controlling stockholder; William C. Brown, president of the road, and William H. Newman, retiring president and a director. Of the three officials, Mr. Brown was injured by being thrown against furniture; all sustained bruises and emerged scantily clad. They may be called upon in the damage suits to testify to their personal experience. Hyman Levy, whose portrait is at the top of the picture, declared the train was exceeding sixty miles an hour. Mrs. Teasdale, whose husband is co-owner of the Standard Oil company, escaped with her baby with slight injuries. Her husband, H. S. Teasdale of Rochester, was informed and thought she had been killed. Mrs. Teasdale's portrait is shown at the top and those of her five children at the bottom.

WOMAN TRIES TO USE GUN

charging them with being spies in the employ of her husband. Frank Mayo was a boarder at the Reagan hotel until the first of the present week. He left Garfield Wednesday and came to Salt Lake. It is stated that Mrs. Reagan suspected him, and followed him to this city, encountering him in the law office of A. B. Irvine in the Boston building, where he had gone in company with Mr. Reagan to make a deposition to be used in the hearing of the case today. It is said the woman waited in the corridor of the building, and when Mayo emerged with her husband she rushed upon him with a Colt's automatic revolver and, placing it against his body, attempted to fire the weapon. She was seized by her husband, who disarmed her after discovering that she did not understand how to operate the safety device on the gun. It is stated that only this fact prevented the gun from being emptied into Mayo's body.

The warrant for Mrs. Reagan's arrest was sworn out before Judge Bowman yesterday morning, and Deputy Sheriff Palmer found her at the hotel in Garfield late yesterday afternoon, and brought her to the county jail. Mrs. Reagan declared after being released on bond yesterday that she would not give up her child, and that she would appear at the hearing before Judge Morse this afternoon. Justice J. A. Weibel of Garfield said last night that Mrs. Reagan was conducting a good hotel business, and had many friends in Garfield who were standing by her in her present fight for the possession of the child.

are set beneath the frame, which brings the center of gravity so low that the car cannot overturn. To those who are making an effort to find the mysterious Dolly Dimples, it is to be distinctly understood that under no circumstances will Dolly Dimples appear at any place other than outlined in her official stories appearing exclusively in The Herald-Republican. All signs placed in shop windows and in front of amusement resorts are unauthorized, and the reading public should pay no attention to them.

When Miss Dolly Dimples gets ready to visit any particular place, she will tell you all about it herself. In order to deal fairly with all merchants who desire a visit to be paid them by Miss Dolly Dimples, all arrangements for such can be made at The Herald-Republican office.

If the lady to whom I spoke about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the corner of First South and Main streets will look over the want columns she will find her description and will receive $5 by calling at The Herald-Republican office and repeating the conversation.

Will Join Union Ranks. Professional Pallbearers of Denver Take Alarm at Prospective Cut in Rates.

Denver, Oct. 28.—Alarmed at the dastardly action of the "amateurs" in cutting the regulation fee to 25 cents, their habitual funeral expression deepened by the attack on their pockets, the professional pallbearers of Denver, who hang around the undertakers' establishments and coroners' offices to aid in the last rites to the friendless dead, are about to join the ranks of organized labor.

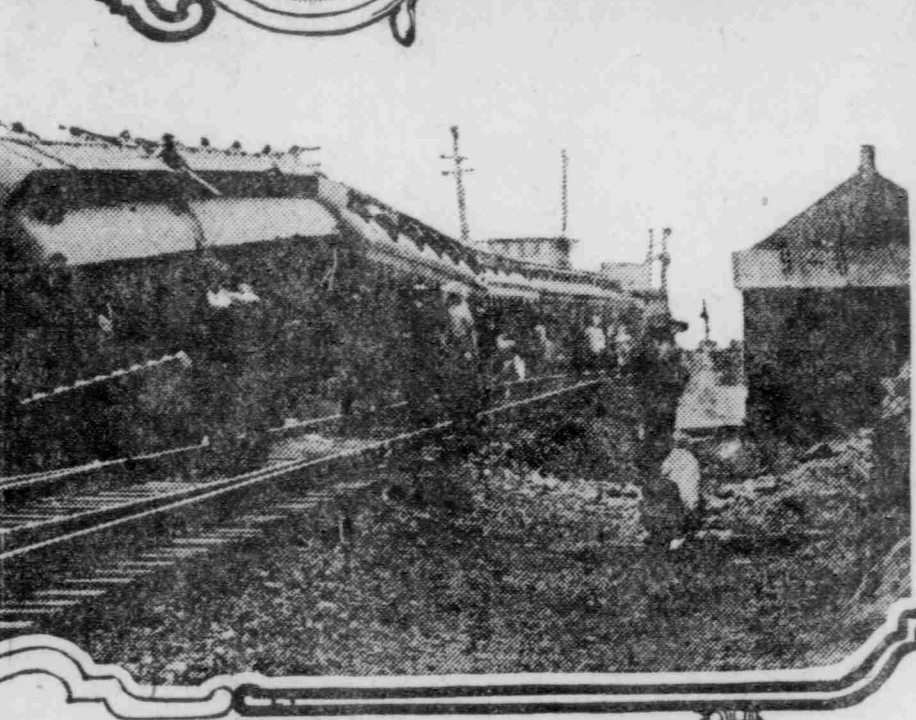

The regulation price for assisting the unclaimed to the grave has been 50 cents, but a few days ago, newcomers in the profession cut the rate to 25 cents. The first funeral conducted under the new rate was interrupted by a mutual strike of the professional pallbearers, and was followed by energetic personal encounters. Stopped by the police from active measures against the amateurs, the professionals have decided that a union offers the only adequate protection to their profession.

She Turned on Gambler. A. E. Talbot, Noted Sporting Character of Reno, Nev., Fatally Shot by His Wife.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 28.—A. E. Talbot, a gambler and sporting character of this city, was shot twice through the right breast with probably fatal results this afternoon by his wife in an attorney's office, where the woman had gone for the purpose of suing her husband for damages from injuries to her person sustained while riding in an American car.

Talbot was taken to a hospital immediately after the shooting and is said at this time to be dying. The woman was arrested. The shooting followed a quarrel between the parties on the night of Saturday. Talbot was severely beaten by her husband and left lying senseless on the bed. Talbot is one of the best known gamblers in the state and is immensely wealthy. He and his wife have had frequent quarrels and she has attempted to kill him on other occasions.

Some day you will write a want ad, which will, directly or indirectly, help you to personal prosperity. Today might be a good day to write it.

In calling at The Herald-Republican a few minutes after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, he told the manager that he believed he was the man wanted and related the story of being approached by the young woman who inquired about the parrot. The story and his description fitted exactly with the information sent to the office by Dolly Dimples (for it was she who had made the absurd inquiry) and the identity was complete. Mr. Horn received his $5 immediately and expressed his thanks warmly.

"Why, I had no idea I was talking to Dolly Dimples," he said, "and had I thought for a minute she was the valuable woman I surely would have had that $200 at least. I had a Herald-Republican in my pocket at the time, but I was not searching for the young woman. The fact is I was more interested in that American Traveler, as it is a new car to me, and while I knew the big crowd there was looking for Dolly, I never thought for a minute that she would accost a person in such a manner. Why, she was the last person in the crowd I would have taken for Dolly Dimples."

"You can just bet your life that if I get close enough to her again I'll get a larger slice of The Herald-Republican money than I was given today, but don't think for a minute that that five spot is not welcome."

"Tell Dolly for me that I'll spend this five on a dinner for her if she will accept the invitation."

A PLEASANT WAY TO CURE CATARRH

Poor deluded victims! Continually sprinkling and spraying and stomach dosing. What are you doing it for? Trying to kill the catarrh germs? Might just as well try to kill a cat with fresh milk.

Sticking a piece of chewing gum in the upper left hand corner of the right ear would slaughter just as many germs. You can't kill the germs that cause catarrh unless you get where they are. You can get where the germs are by breathing Hyomel, the powerful yet soothing antiseptic which is prepared especially to kill catarrh germs.

Just breathe it in, that's all. It gives joyful relief in five minutes. It is guaranteed by F. C. Schramm to cure catarrh, or money back. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs $1.00. Extra bottles, 50c. Cures sore throat, coughs and colds.

"I take especial pride in recommending Hyomel to asthmatic sufferers, as I know by experience that it is a remedy that cures. I have not since using Hyomel had any recurrence of asthma."—Mrs. Wm. Burton, Owosso, Mich., June 22, 1909.

PROTECTION OF FORESTS

Floods Prevented Since Headwaters of Manti Creek Were Closed to Stock.

The value of proper protection of forest and range as a means of flood prevention has recently been well demonstrated on the Manti national forest in central Utah. Among the creeks which have their origin in this forest are Manti, Ephraim, Six Mile and others. Following the denudation of the watersheds of these creeks by the grazing of livestock, serious and destructive floods occurred each year, and the amount of damage suffered by settlers living along the streams and by the residents of the towns of Ephraim, Manti and Sterling, amounted to thousands of dollars annually.

It is the duty of the citizens of the city of Manti, the headwaters of Manti creek were closed to all classes of stock for a year or so, and since then a steady reduction in the volume of the flood waters of this creek has been apparent. It is estimated that the present year to give a full demonstration of the value of the protection afforded. On Aug. 17, a heavy rain fell over the entire area of the forest, and particularly around the headwaters of the creeks mentioned.

The floods in Ephraim, Six Mile and Faxon creeks were quite heavy, while in Manti creek, which is situated between the others with its headwaters in close proximity, but where the watershed was protected the heavy rains passed through-out the entire area of the forest, and particularly around the headwaters of the creeks mentioned.

When the wives come home. (Baltimore Sun.) It's a sweeter world, from base to dome, It's a sweeter land, when the wives come home. The grind don't seem like it used to seem, And the old home smiles in the arms of dream.

When the wives come home, when the wives come home, When the wives come home, when the wives come home. They're a lot of care and a heap of trouble, But it's empty world and a bursted bubble When they go away and they stay so.

And the heart grows sick for the home-love song; It's a different world when we're all alone, And the wives have flown, the wives have flown.

It's a summer place to spend our lives When the old home shines with the sweet old wife, And our hearts know best, through the roth and foam, What a joy it is when the wives come home; How the sunlight breaks and we feel its cheer, When we know that the lips we love lean near.

APROPOS OF TAXES.

(Washington Post.) Apropos of New York's 1909 assessment rolls, Lawson Purdy, president of the department of taxes, told a reporter a story about Gladstone.

"Gladstone had no great scientific knowledge," he said, "and at a dinner, when Faraday described an important new scientific discovery, the premier showed indifference."

"After all," he said, "hiding a raven behind his hand, 'what use will it ever be?' 'Why,' said Faraday, 'there's every probability that that same day you'll be able to tax it.'"

HAD CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT.

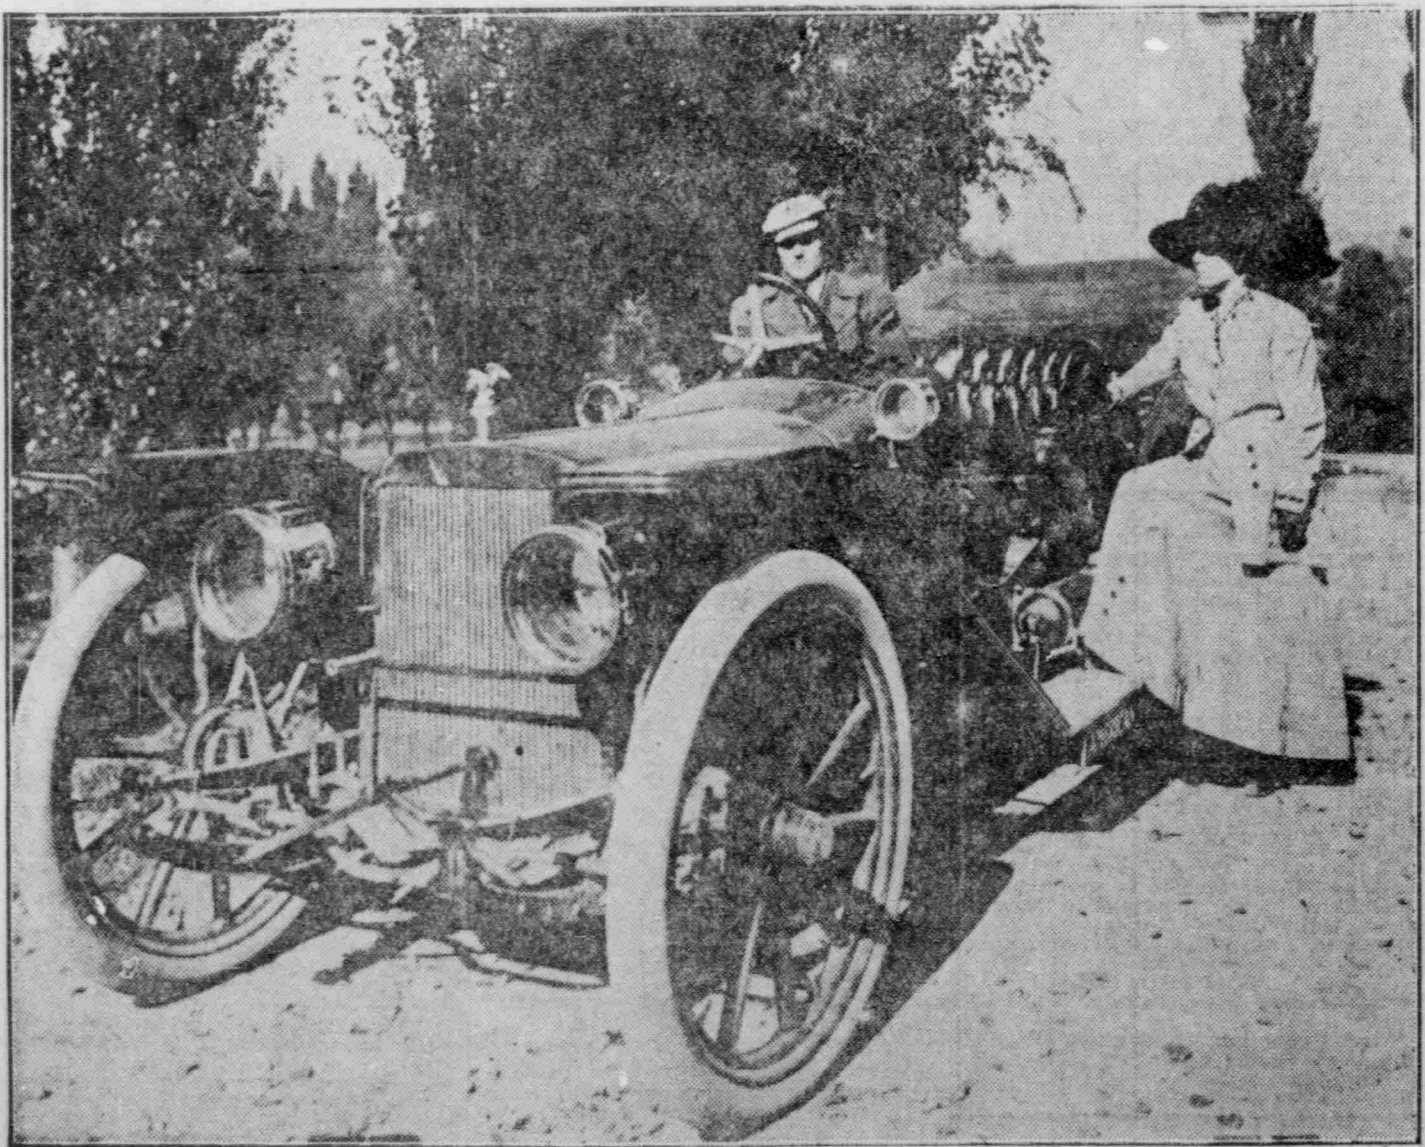

(Answers.) A big, able-bodied man of about middle age shuffled into the poor law guardian's office and curtly bade the clerk good morning.

"What d'you mean," he began, "by knockin' off poor widder Snagg's parish pay? She's a 'onest, 'ard workin' woman, whose nose is in the washtub all day, an' it's a wicked shame to rob her of her lawful rights."

The clerk took down a big ledger and silently consulted it.

"Mrs. Snagg has married again," he said, "and the guardians have decided that she is no longer entitled to outdoor relief; and, in any event, my man," he added, sharply, "I should like to know if the matter is any concern of yours?"

"Concern of mine?" the man repeated. "Well, I should rather think so, guv'nor. If you stops the ole lady's pay you stop my daily ounce o' shag an' quart o' beer, too! I'm 'er noo 'usband!"
